

The Indiana Telephone Privacy law has enabled my family and myself to enjoy our privacy without the disruption of unwanted telephone solicitations. A telephone is a necessary tool in our lifestyle. I pay the phone bill and I should be able to decide how my phone is to be used. Just because I may have used a credit card, auto loan, mortgage, etc. through a bank. Shouldn't give that bank the authorization to harrass me on my phone, or give my phone number to a subsidiary. A home phone number is private and personal and I want to keep it that way. The Indiana Telephone Privacy bill only applied to phone numbers where the owners voluntarily requested to be included. The politicians are elected and sworn to serve and protect their voters best interest. The legal system is supposed to serve and protect the public. Do the right thing - serve and protect the public trust and not the banks interest.
